SO MANY LONELY MEN ARE SURPRISE TO NEW YORK WIDOW

In Light of Letters From Many Bidders for Her Hand She Modifies Specifications.

REGARD BALDNESS

Also She Is Inclined to Believe There May Be Desirables Who Weigh Over 170.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.-With her brown eyes frimming with fun and amusement, now and then sobered by a quick flash of womanly sympathy as she read some heart-felt expression of loneliness, Mrs. Ray Pitt of New York, the good-looking young widow who wrote she would like to find a good husband, sat in a morris chair at her home on the upper west side with a bundle of letters in her lsp. The sunlight from a window touched her fluffy brown hair lightly, and her lips broke now and then in laughter as she read the first dozen of so letters received by The World from men who thought, or hoped, that they might fill the bill of particulars laid down as her requirements in the man she might marry. Some of the letters were so serious and sincers that she refused to comment upon them, but laid them carefully aside. Some of the others she read lines from without giving the names or adthe good-looking young widow who The Widow Pitt had laid down as

The Widow Pitt had laid down as the rules of the contest that the man who might win her hand if she learned to love him must be from thirty-five to forty-five years of age, weigh from 140 to 170 pounds, with good teeth and health; who might take a drink if temperate; might smoke if he smoked good cigars; might belong to a club if he loved his bome; had a good business position or profession; might be a widower with one child; fond of children in the home.

"So Many Lonely Men."

Mrs. Pitt herself is thirty-one, a good cook and housekeeper, has light skin, dark hair and brown eyes, loves boating, swimming and fishing, good books and travel, knows how to make a home and has no children. She weights 160 pounds and is five feet eight inches tall.

"I should never have guessed there were so many lonely men in the world," she said. "I said the other day that I wouldn't marry a bald-headed man, but I will take that back—if the man is good-natured and otherwise measures up to the requirements. Lots of good men haven't much hair, but have lots of good mains in their heads. Also, I think—this was after she had read some of the letters and carefully laid them aside—"perhaps I put the matter of weight too low. I said he should weigh 140, to 170 pounds. Now there probably are many good men in the world who weigh more than that. Even if a man weighed 190 he might be an ideal husband.

"Of course, you understand what makes a man is his head and his heart. A good nusbrand ought to have had a good mother and a very high ideal of womanhood. He ought to have had a good mother and true man. There are farmers who are asks. A man doesn't have to live in a city to be an all around good and true man. There are farmers who are man from their heels to their heads, and good men, too. Many city men are flighty—bouncing here and there. Among the men who have written me are flighty—bouncing here and there. Among the men who have written me are bankers, stenographers, hotellicepers, business men, and cattlemen. "This Sounds Sincere." cook and housekeeper, has light skin, dark hair and brown eyes, loves boating.

"This Sounds Sincere." "Here is a letter from a man from

New Mexico wnich sounds sincere: New Mexico which sounds sincere:

'Dear Mrs. J'itt: I am answering your call for a middle-aged man. I think that I fill the bill. I am thirty-eight years old and am in the cattle business, and my home is in New Mexico. I smoke, but I do not drink. The only time when I stay out is when I see a show. I came on here to see some of my relatives, whem I have not seen for years. I hope you will answer this letter before I go home. The picture in the newspapers pleases picture in the newspapers pleases me very much.'

me very much.

"Another man writes: 'I do not chew, but I take a drink when I feel the same, generally when I go to bed.' Another says: 'Reading of you in the World, I find you are the one worsan in the world I desire for a wife.' That, man makes up his mind, quickly. The gentlemen who have written to me are of all ages, from thirty-two to so many vears old they forget to tell me their ages.

"I said I wanted to meet a brunette, but here is a man who says he is thirty-two, light hair, and blue eves.

"Another man says: "A good woman is the most perfect thing in the world. A man who is happlity married to a good woman is the happlest. With a man should be a good citizen, a loving husband and father, a true friend, a hard and honest worker, and should try siways to make the world better for his having lived in it." That man has something of the proper spirit.

"Another man writes that he is fond of boating, swimming, fishing, and is particularly fond of canoeins."

"A man told me the other day about his home in the suburbs of the city mear New York. He has a little cottage house, a garden, a boat on the river, and is fond of taking long walks through the forests in spring and summer searching for race plants: it is his home near the water, a light boat in which to go rowing or paddling in the colo of the evening after the day's work, would recompense for a lot of things in the city or in the nearby suburbs in the city or in the nearby suburbs.

that people who do not live in the city miss.

"While I would prefer a man living in the city or in the nearby suburbs and employed in the city I know that the sweetest life is often that in the little home in the Country with enough money to live comfortably upon and chances of recreation in the forests or on the water. I like salt water fishing and can sit contentedly in a boat all day where there are gamy sea bass to catch; but there is a deal of sport in fresh water fishing—lake trout, river salmon and brook trout. See, I have all my fishing tackle here in a case in my sitting room. It reminds me of the happy days I have passed in boats with this tackle whipping the surrounding water. One of the most interesting letters that I have received was from a water. One of the most interesting let-ters that I have received was from a man who is just starting on a fishing trip to the country, but who pauses in his letter to tell me what his ideal of a good womanly woman is and how much help such a wife could be to a man in the everydry battle of living.

"Worth the Trouble."

"I shall think over all these letters "I shall think over all these letters carefully. If I find the right sort of man it will be worth all the trouble. Of course, there are lots of good men who do not answer all my requirements. There are many fine men who are blonds; only I like dark-haired and dark-eyed men best. One man writes that he can pass an examination $8 per cent perfect in health. I wonder what the other 2 per cent deficiencies are? If it was only a little thing like corns or a slight baldness it wouldn't be se Congressmen Protest New Plan of Postoffice to Double Up Routes in Country.

Delivery of rural mails by automooiles is "absolutely impracticable." in the opinion of Congressman Thomas U. Sisson of Mississippi, who has come all the way to .Washington to protest to the Postoffice Department against the consolidation of routes and the substitution of automobiles for horse-drawn ehicles in his State.

Mr. Sisson says the new automobile ielivery plan of the department, which is being put into operation in many localties, will not work except in fair ATLANTA, Aug. 15.—Dr. L. G. Hardman went up to his Nacoochee Valley farm recently, to superintend the work preparatory to the excavation of an indian mound which possesses an interesting history.

There, Nachoochee, an Indian princess, was buried, and tradition holds a fascinating romance connected with her life and death.

Archaeologists, representing a New York museum, will excavate the mound in order to make a scientific study of the lives of the race which once inhabited that section of the country in the years ago.

The utensils used, their war paraphornalia, and even the skeletons of the peoples buried there, will afford interesting research work. All the interesting excavations will be carried to the New York museum, and the mound will be rebuilt just as it stands today.
